FROM NICARAGUA.

By the schr. May, Capt. Knapp, at Baltimore, from San B as, whence she sailed 21 instant, we learn, says the American, that the port of San Juan was still blockace. There was an American brig (same not recollected) from New York, James Roberts, master, lying at Blewfield, which Capt. Knapp thinks will have to return without discharging her cargo. All the vessels from the S raits of Gibraliar and Italy have been obliged to land their cargoes at Salt Ceek. The British have appointed a Minister and Consul for the Musquito Shore, who had armed and taken charge of the port of Blewfield, in the name of the Mu-quito King's son, and have commenced making new laws.

A tonnage duty of 50 cents per ton will be levied on all ves els arriving at B ewfield, Penil Key, or Corn Islands, during the present month or August. B caton and Salt Creek were the on y ports of entry held by the Colombians, and it was generally understood that the English would soon take them in charge as belonging to the dominions of the M squito King.

FREE TRADE IGNORANCE - It is astonishing what profound ignorance the advocates of free trade or Locofocos in are in upon the subject of trade and commerce. Recently it was stated by Mr. Edmunds, (a leader of the Locofoco party in Habiax county, Va., and a candidate on the Polk Electoral ticket.) that not a barrel of flour was ever sent from Virginia to Boston!

Mr. E imunds is reputed to be a man of talents and of some information, and yet he is so ignorant of the trade of his own State as not to know that the New England States, and Massachusetts especially, are the greatest consumers of the flour and grain of Virginia. This prepisterous assertion of Mr. Elimonds was immediately met by the certificates of millers, merchants, and shippers of R claused, in which they state the fact that not less than 300,000 to 500,000 bb s. of fl ur are sent from Verginia to New England, and that 5 10 000 bu hels of Virginia corn are consumed annual y by Mes-achusetts a one! - Balt. Am.

We learn from the Cinconnatt Straight-Out. that when General Cass was making his speech in that city, he exclaimed: "Who would you rether support, Clay or Poik ?" " Clay ! Clay !! Clay !!!" shouted everybody, much to the dis conditure of the orator, who looked chop-falle. and remarked: "If you are all tor Clay, it is unness y for me to speak to you "-Louisville J.ur.

APPROPRIATE EMBLEM -The Locofocos of this city, after much difficulty, have succeeded in rearing their banner pole, and have, very properly, placed on the top of it, a weathercock, and although he never crows, he evinces a remarkable facility in adapting h mself to the breeze.

NEW BOOK -A very neat little volume of poems, from the press of Alexander & Barnard of this city, has been presented to us by the author, Mr. John S. Moore, of Maryland. We learn that the author is yet in his seventeenth year, a circumstance which cannot fail to make every one curious to examine his book. The title is "The Oracle of Delphos, and other poems." The poems evince an acquaintance with classical and English literature remarkable in one so young. The sentiments, so far as we have had leisure to examine the work, appear to be in general good, and expressed in easy, elegant, flowing verse. We were in particular very favorably impressed with the "Oracle of Delphos, ' and the "Offering up of Crœ-u-." The others, we have only had time to g'ance at, and therefore cannot undertake to pronounce upon them.

The work deserves the patronage of the pubic, not only for its intrinsic merit, but because it cannot fail to excite the emulation of other youths in the acquisition of literature.
